Technology

S1801 iPad for Beginners

The iPad has become the go-to alternative to using a full computer. It has many of the same features but is much simpler to use. This course is for beginners who are just starting to experiment with or use an iPad and need to become more familiar with the various iPad components. You will be introduced to the settings menu and the use of features such as Contacts, Safari, Email, Camera, as well as downloading and using Applications (aka 'apps') from the Apple Store. Participants must bring their own FULLY CHARGED iPads to class. This class would also be suitable for individuals new to iPhone.

Beyond Beginner iPad (S1803 and S1804)

Have you mastered the basics of your iPad, but you still find yourself asking "I wonder how I...."? Then this course is for you! You will be introduced to some interesting topics and tips to help you get more out of your iPad. Together you will explore: a) taking pictures and working with photos (sending them as attachments, uploading, editing, sharing, organizing/storing); b) how to use contacts and calendars, reminder and notes to keep you organized; c) using your iPad as a source of news, your personal library, and other reading material. If time permits, additional topics that might be included are: d) using maps for directions, and e) online comparison pricing/shopping. More importantly, you will learn strategies for finding the answers yourself!

S1807 Beginner Computer “Boot Camp”

You might think of this as a computer pre-natal class! If you’re new to using a computer and want to take any of the other computer ElderCollege technology courses using a PC or laptop, it is highly recommended you take this course first. ALSO– if you have been resisting using a computer completely, here is where you can gently ease into the ‘how to’. Learn the minimum basics necessary for progressing quickly to other computer skills: how to turn your computer on/off; how to use the mouse, trackpad or touchscreen; and how to use the Start menu to open and close Programs and/or Apps. Learn about those strange-looking keys on your keyboard and how to use the on-screen keyboard. Other courses will assume that you already have this basic computer know-how. Limited to 8 students.

S1810 Downloading E-books from Your Library

Although many people still prefer to have a 'real' book in their lap, those who travel frequently love the idea of having lots of reading material on their iPads rather than carrying several books in a suitcase or carry-on. Look no further than your local library to start your collection of E-books! Come find out what the process is for downloading your favourite authors without leaving the comfort of your home. Just imagine – if you are a voracious reader and exhaust your supply while away, the nearest Wifi and your library online account will quickly ensure you are a “Happy Camper”! Participants should have attended a Beginners' iPad course or be using their iPads regularly for email and online searches.

Social Studies

S1825 Towards an Understanding of the Middle East

In the media, we are accustomed to hearing about the tensions between Arabs and Israelis, but Muslims fighting with each other? To the Western mind this may seem incomprehensible. This five-session course will explore the reasons, historical and current, behind the constant tensions in the Middle East. It will also try to identify the different regional players involved: Armenians, Arabs, Israelis, Iranians, Kurds, Palestinians and Turks and their external allies or foes, (Russia, the USA, the UK and France). Participants are expected to do some additional weekly readings.

Presenter – Guillermo Bustos (Retired Delta Educator)

S1826 The Skies Fall; the Earth Moves; the Oceans Rise

This course explores the many ways in which major and minor events in Earth's history have affected the history of man. Both Science and Traditional Indigenous Knowledge will be the keys for our understanding, and many sites along Canada's West Coast will be explored. Topics Include:

- what we see when we look up and wonder about the moon;
- where we are moving on Earth, one way or another, at all times;
- how volcanic eruptions, both near and far, have affected the history of people;
- how land, oceans, people and human structures move during an earthquake;
- what we have inherited from the Ice Age.

Presenter - Dr. Jim Morin (Retired Post-Secondary Educator)

S1827 How We “Keep the Lights on” in B.C.

We will start with an overview of B.C. Hydro's Reservoir operations, highlighting the water management decisions that are made on a continuous basis: balancing flood management, electricity production, and environmental, recreational, and other issues. We will then explore the Columbia River Treaty (a very important Canada-U.S. water management agreement in place since 1964) and the implications of the recent U.S. announcement that they will soon begin talks with Canada on “renegotiating” this treaty. Although not directly involved, the presenter will take questions about our province's recent decision to continue with the Site C project and implications for B.C.'s future.

Presenter – Kevin Ketchum (Retired Civil Engineer in Water Resources)

S18FT2/S18FT3 Art Deco Architecture Walking Tour of Vancouver

On this tour, you will hear how Art Deco swept out of Paris in the 1920's and took North America by storm. This period of change tore up the rule book on architecture. Downtown Vancouver hosts some Art Deco beauties – from the streamlined sophistication of the Vogue Theatre to the ornate decadence of the Marine building, with much more in between! Along the way, we'll unlock the history of these remarkable buildings. We'll also visit artist Alan Storey's gigantic pendulum, the Hotel Vancouver and the Vancouver Art Gallery. They aren't Art Deco, but they do have a story to tell!

Tour Guide: Will Woods of Forbidden Vancouver Walking Tours

Group Schedule:

We will travel by public transit (bus, Canada Line) with a 9 am departure.

Our guide will meet us outside the Vogue Theatre for a 10:30 am start.

Our tour will end at the Marine Building on Burrard street at 12:30 pm.

An optional group lunch is planned, facilities permitting, at participant's expense.

We will return by public transit for 3:00 pm.

S18SP1: The Hudson's Bay Blanket – Point Blankets from Fur Trade to Home

Presented by Harold Tichenor

(Canadian Award-winning Film Maker, Writer and Television Producer)

Don't miss this unique "Antiques Roadshow" event!

Learn about a unique slice of Canadian history– the story of the point blanket, or Hudson's Bay blanket. During the first part of this session, Howard Tichenor, author of The Blanket: An Illustrated History of the Hudson's Bay Blanket and The Collector's Guide to Point Blankets, will share the history of the point blanket followed by a question and answer session. For the second part of the session, you are invited to bring in point blankets that may have been in your home for years. All onlookers are welcome. Mr. Tichenor will date and assess your blanket(s). In addition, a free copy of the author's collectors' guide will go to the person who brings in the oldest blanket. Copies of the guide will be available for sale to those interested.

Saturday, March 3, 2018

10:00–11:00am (formal presentation)

11:15am – 1pm (dating and assessment of participants' blankets)

S18SP2: Digital Threats to Democracy at Home and Abroad

Presented by Dr. David Moscrop
(Political Scientist, Writer, Media Commentator)

After the American, German and French elections of the past few years, we knew that we were in trouble....

David Moscrop returns to ElderCollege Delta to share his current work in Canada on the impact of digital technologies on our political systems and decisions. Digital technologies enable new ways of learning and democratic engagement, but they also generate new risks to democracy at election time and beyond. What are those risks? Who are the threat actors? What can we do about this reality? Be prepared for a lively discussion!

Saturday, March 24, 2018
10:00am - Noon

S18SP3: The Recipe of the Universe

Presented by Dr. Jaymie Matthews (Dept. of Physics & Astronomy, U.B.C., Qilak Award in Astronomy Education and Public Outreach, Officer of the Order of Canada)

After this session, you will likely see the Universe – and our place in it – in a very different light!

Four hundred years from now, historians will look back on our time in the same way that we regard the time of Galileo 400 years ago. In the 40 years or more since we were students, scientists' perception of the composition of the universe has transformed. We will explore recipes of the Universe in the astronomer's cookbook up to 1978, until 2003, and in the present. Light is the key, yet the story emerges as one of mysterious dark matter and even more mysterious dark energy. It is also the story of three pioneering women over the past century who opened our eyes to the true nature of the Sun and the stars that we can see, and the key ingredients in the cosmic recipe that we cannot.
